almost did something really stupid.

As many of you know I have been in GAS mode for a month or so now and I have had to sell quite a few great pedals to fund it. Anyway, I bought another Moog delay and now I need to pay for it. So I sat back, surveyed my stock and decided to sell my FZ-2. Then I thought, I better plug this in and check it out, it's been a while since I've played with it.

Long story short, the FZ-2 is going nowhere. I will figure something else out. That pedal makes the HM-2 and the MT-2 sound like they hired Justin Beiber to design them.

come on Aaron.... you really don't need that extra pedal taking up valuable real-estate on your pedalboard(insert evil laugh here). Cavey has been looking for one of these rascals..... mwahhahahaahaaa. Moog is calling..... I guess the FZ-2 is really worth all the hype-r after all.

It is. One of the best pedals I've ever had.

Had one years ago, sold it, regretted it and got another one

The gain and the EQ are great

Definitely the EQ! Why do not all Fuzz pedals have two EQ knobs?

Does the FZ-2 offer a comparable but better metal distortion than the mt-2? I like the smoothness of the mt-2 but it does lack in some areas.

The FZ-2 is an acquired taste I guess.

When I first tried it, it was just too much for me. Almost evil. I was gonna sell it on, too - but forgot about it for a while.

Couple of weeks ago I got it out again and it's just such an unique sounding pedal - I'm glad I kept it.

Just like the HM-2, there's a band associated with the FZ-2 - they're called Electric Wizard.

The MT2 is a hairier version of the FZ2

FZ-2 sounds like an MT-2 modded by Satan

That's great

The FZ2 is closer to a Shin-ei/Univox Superfuzz

Better do it quick. They are getting harder to come by and the prices are only going up.

My thoughts exactly.
How does the 2 compare to the other fz's?

The 3 is alot like the Fuzz Face, but with buffers, i thought it was a disappointment

Not sure about the 5, but not too many positive reviews being COSM and all Night and day.

I never liked the sound of a Std. Strat untill I heard it trough a FZ-2. It is just an evil pedal.

I only have the FZ-3...I like it, but I've never heard or used a FZ-2. Someday...
