Original marked prices

by Laurie » 13 Dec 2011, 05:26

Now there's an interesting thread to start... a few of us have boxes with original prices marked on them. We could capture all of those prices in a sticky thread...

(Moderator Edit: Good idea, I've split this off from the original thread.)

Laurie

Re: Price list

by natthu » 13 Dec 2011, 07:04

Just got a DSD-3 with original price tag: $299

natthu

Re: Original marked prices

by skugga » 13 Dec 2011, 07:58

I'm sure my 1992 CH-1 box still has the price on it somewhere.

I'll have to dig it out.

skugga

Re: Original marked prices

by Arpeggiator » 13 Dec 2011, 10:03

XT-2:

189.99 Deutsche Mark

(about $128)

Arpeggiator

Re: Original marked prices

by sp-1 » 13 Dec 2011, 11:18

But How do I know it's the "new" price or the "used" price ? My SP-1 says 135,- DM on a sticker from "lyra Musikhaus"

sp-1

Re: Original marked prices

by Dirk » 13 Dec 2011, 17:42

The '90 CE-2 I bought from Hateandwar says £49.95 from Curly Music, I always thought you guys had Dollars in Australia?

Dirk

Re: Original marked prices

by strangekomet » 13 Dec 2011, 21:09

we did use pounds until sometime in the sixties, maybe it's an ultra rare early model...

strangekomet

Re: Original marked prices

by natthu » 13 Dec 2011, 21:12

1966 is when we changed over to metric money, so that CE-2 is obviously a '66 or earlier

...and that's really expensive too... You could buy a house for 50 pounds back then...

natthu

Re: Original marked prices

by Jeremy » 17 Dec 2011, 10:12

got a DD-5 secondhand (from the US) in its original packaging ...

Jeremy

Re: Original marked prices

by DB Cooper » 17 Dec 2011, 14:22

I just picked up a ML-2 Metal Core (pristine condition, dirt cheap) off the local Craigslist and the sticker from the store said $167.50

DB Cooper

Re: Original marked prices

by tunghaichuan » 17 Dec 2011, 15:13

I like mine, but I wouldn't pay more than $50-$60 for one.

tunghaichuan

Re: Original marked prices

by DB Cooper » 17 Dec 2011, 23:39

Got mine for $40, seller was asking $60.

DB Cooper

Re: Original marked prices

by strangekomet » 18 Dec 2011, 02:46

there's a new (well, should be nos by now) xt-2 at a music shop down the road from where i work, price on the box: $245...
probably explains why it's been there so long

strangekomet

Re: Original marked prices

by Zerksies » 18 Dec 2011, 03:46

I was just hoping to get a list price sheet and use todays discount and get a ball park of what they might of costs back then. In the last 5 years the price of a DS-1 has gone from $35usd to $50usd

Zerksies

Re: Original marked prices

by verivorax » 19 Dec 2011, 06:18

I went over all my boxed stuff to see what had prices marked on them.. not a whole lot of luck!

1980 OD-1 box marked $63.00 in pen.. Who prices new stuff like that??
MIJ BF-2 with a sticker saying $147.50!!
MIJ CS-3 with two prices - $140 above and "$105 each" - maybe list vs. actual price at the time?

verivorax

Re: Original marked prices

by DB Cooper » 19 Dec 2011, 18:10

Just received a new-in-box RC-2 Loop Station for $90...but the price on the box, from Haight-Asbury Music Center, shows a price $284.99...yikes! (refer back to my original thread "Does anyone buy NEW Boss pedals?")

DB Cooper

Re: Original marked prices

by verivorax » 20 Dec 2011, 05:39

Someone on Toronto Kijiji is unloading a boxed MIJ DD-3.. he says he still has his receipt for in 1989.

verivorax

Re: Original marked prices

by BearBoy » 20 Dec 2011, 12:43

I've still got a few of my old receipts and my DD-3 cost me £129.99 new in 1991. That was a lot of money for me at the time (was still at school)

Not sure what the $ to £ exchange rate was back then.

BearBoy

Re: Original marked prices

by skugga » 20 Dec 2011, 13:00

I must have taken the sticker off of 1991 CH-1 but I remember it being A$129 because I had to save all summer and paint half the house to get it. Damn parents and their slave labour.

My 1997 MT-2 still has the A$229 sticker on it though.

skugga