Has there ever been...

by stratguy23 » 21 Dec 2011, 18:15

I've noticed there are a lot of times where Boss has number missing in a series, so I was just wondering why, and if certain pedals actually do exist

Was there:
DD-1 and DD-4
CE-4
MT-1
TU-1

Seems like there are a lot of 1s and 4s missing, any reason for that?

stratguy23

Re: Has there ever been...

by Zerksies » 21 Dec 2011, 20:39

The Japanese consider the number 4 to be unlucky. And any pedal that they did have with a #4 did not sell to well. and as for the 1 . they consider that pedal to be the prototype. So i guess they got it right the first time with the DS-1

Zerksies

Re: Has there ever been...

by strangekomet » 21 Dec 2011, 21:05

in china, japan and korea the number 4 has the same sound as 'death,' so dd-4 would sound like 'digital delay death' and ce-4 would be 'chorus ensemble death' for the same reason in parts of asia there is no '4'th floor in elevators but instead 'f'th - 'death' floor dosn't have a very appealing ring to it apparently...

strangekomet

Re: Has there ever been...

by cpage86 » 24 Dec 2011, 04:38

I have wondered this exact thing many times...

cpage86

Re: Has there ever been...

by natthu » 24 Dec 2011, 06:50

> strangekomet wrote:
> ...chorus ensemble death...

At least it sounds like a novel way to go....

natthu

Re: Has there ever been...

by strangekomet » 24 Dec 2011, 08:43

phaser death: has a cool ring to it,
compressor death: sounds painful,
slow gear death: sounds like a drug overdose...

strangekomet

Re: Has there ever been...

by Frogstomp89 » 24 Dec 2011, 08:53

I'm from china and I am in a 4 Metal Band

Frogstomp89