Boss Merch/Collectables

by toyroomtim » 14 Feb 2016, 21:28

Who's got some?!

In my work with a few stores that deal in vintage boss pedals, i've come across and claimed a lot of fun stuff..

What've you got?

Cool! When have these been made/distributed? I have seen similar stuff in the last years in various shapes. Funny to see a BOSS compact version of the towels.

I've never seen the towels before. Any idea what the three tiny peals at the center bottom under the pick tin are? just pins maybe?I've never seen those either. I wish Boss would put some of this stuff up for sale or at least put out a list of what's out there.

I've got both books and they're a great reference. I don't even speak japanese but they have plenty of useful info.

The mini DS1 is a functional clock.. Not a pedal..

I dug out a bunch of old VHS cassettes of family stuff etc. the other day. Bought a VHS player from the thrift store for $10 and went to Best Buy and bought one of these http://www.bestbuy.ca/en-ca/product/daz ... 79176.aspx

The VCR was a super-high-end one. Would have cost $500+ back in the day. Cleaned the heads and played the tapes into the DAZZLE (gotta love that name).

It worked just fine. Gave the VCR back the thrift store when I was done

I now have all my old VHS home videos on disk as MPG. Quality is crap, but at least the content is now "safe".

Is the fuzz clock a FZ-5 or a FZ-3?

FZ-5. You can see the number on the box and it has the COSM label on the "pedal".

That Metal Zone watch is wild!
I don't have much as far as collectables go.
Other than the Boss book, I also have a TR-2 pin that's currently pinned on the grille cloth of my amp and also some 70s boss stickers that came with my SS OD-1

the coolest thing was- i have part to a boss display- like froma guitar center i could have had the whole thing but it was IMPOSSIBLE to move- so i kept the cool parts from it- like the boss light at the top and the boss pannels...

i have some banners/posters- i have more of other brands but boss is my fav so i want to get all i can.

i had an artist do some lithographs of a ds-1 i had painted that look like art on our office wall
