PW-2, Do You Also Think it Can Sound Like.....

by visserman » 08 Jul 2014, 13:53

Electro Harmonix Big Muff with its thick sound, especially when you use the bass strings. It can really sound like a Fuzz.

It is a great pedal, probably misunderstood. Good for alternative rock, but also for metal if you wish. It can even play, almost clean, you do not even have to be that careful as what Pepe claims about picking in his video.

I like how it sounds so different from most of the other Boss dirt pedals, hence me feeling there is a bit of Big Muff there.

Been trying to make it sound as airy as possible with a delay and an EQ before it. All of this adds detail to sound of pedal, does not really take away (or add to) character of PW-2.

Any other people who like using it from time to time?

visserman

Re: PW-2, Do You Also Think it Can Sound Like.....

by deancrean » 08 Jul 2014, 17:09

When I first got it I was totally not impressed! It sat on my shelf collecting dust for a long time. In my recent quest to find a fuzz that I can get along with I decided to throw it on my board and give it a try. Came to the conclusion that it is a great substitute for fuzz for a person who just cant get along with fuzz.

deancrean

Re: PW-2, Do You Also Think it Can Sound Like.....

by sclitheroe » 09 Jul 2014, 01:54

It is the chain-smoking whiskey drinking older uncle to the Muff - a rougher, more gravelly version

sclitheroe

Re: PW-2, Do You Also Think it Can Sound Like.....

by visserman » 10 Jul 2014, 18:06

> sclitheroe wrote:
> It is the chain-smoking whiskey drinking older uncle to the Muff - a rougher, more gravelly version

Nice way of summing it's sound up !

visserman

Re: PW-2, Do You Also Think it Can Sound Like.....

by earthrug » 12 Jan 2015, 14:06

Ya, it does lend itself to the whole Grungy/Muff fuzz stuff. It's mid heaviness works well with my strat's fat 50's. It's a cool pedal.

earthrug

Re: PW-2, Do You Also Think it Can Sound Like.....

by 1969atam » 02 Feb 2015, 16:15

I bought a mint one in late '09 with box. I love the colour but the sound is a bit noisy for the sake of noise sake. It's like a JCM900 cranked I guess. I bought the Xtortion a month later and out of the two the XT-2 is more fun, you can get the 'Money For Nothing' tone with this in a flash, but again an oddball in the Boss dirt box line up! Someday they will be fetching big bucks? Who knows.
See my comparison vid! https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=lzL8pyy2WIo
See my channel - https://www.youtube.com/channel/UC5s0pT ... gNdtc6L4Cw

1969atam