I'll start, shall I? Finally got my Zoom Hyper-Lead today, so I have the complete family of four ...

Jeremy, why was that XLR built into that noisegate?

like it says on the box it's a low-z output..... z being impedance I think

I know, but why include that on a noisegate? That seems an odd combo.

maybe the thought of wasting a whole pedal just for a noise gate seemed stupid so they made it into a DI box as well

I've got a later model FX30 Noise Gate, which doesn't have the DI out some of the earlier FET preamps (Studio Bi-FET) has the DI

Thanks, Laurie! Especially the Dynamic Echo is a very nice unit. I have two of them for true stereo occasions. The only sad thing is that there is no E/D output option, so there's always the original signal above the effect sound. But overall it is a very funky tool with crazy sounds en masse. There was a reason why I sent one of these to natthu last year.
