First look/listen - the LGP (liquid Gold Phaser)

by Laurie » 03 Jun 2012, 18:02

We did a quick recording of the LGP with crappy audio last night at a local gig...

How's the release date looking? Any idea on the final pricing?

We are just raising some cash with the current sale to pay for the release costs. Should be good to go in a couple of weeks.

Pricing will be $135 MSRP, with an intorductory offer of $95 to long-term forum members.

Any forum members looking for a phaser, look no further. Especially at that price for L/T members.
Git er bought....

Compared with the prices for a beat-up PH-1, this LGP is a steal!

LGP boxes are machined and currently at the powder-coat paint shop. Should have them to the screen-printer in about 2 weeks. Circuit boards should be here at about the same time.

Estimating it will be a mid-August release.

Housings come back from the printer today. LGP's should be shipping by Monday....

Introductory price will be $95.

So I can order one now then? Must have missed that memo.

I'll send you a PM.

I'd like to give it a positive rating, but this function is disabled as always.

Sounds really good. But the demo is very short and I had liked to hear the "More" range at a slower or faster speed.

Aha! The speed is at maximum when turned fully counter-clockwise!

A small optical thing: it would look a bit cooler, if the power supply cable wasn't visible. I use batteries for my demos.

Like an artist... a project is never done. Making a few more tweaks to make it even better! Release of production LGP's will be later in the year.

I will order one alongside with a stereo version to do that. Whenever that may be. Only depends on when you've finished the custom version.

Gearmanndude also uses a PSU, so you're not alone Laurie..

OK. Made a few tweaks. And made the vintage nature of the circuit a FEATURE.

It's all good, and up on the web site.

Great now get started on a trem please ;)

chop chop

Re: First look/listen - the LGP (liquid Gold Phaser)

by Laurie » 01 Sep 2012, 02:50

"chop chop" is a vibrato (at least in the Fender world). Make up your mind... Trem, or vibrato?

Laurie

Re: First look/listen - the LGP (liquid Gold Phaser)

by sclitheroe » 01 Sep 2012, 03:05

Haha, I meant as in ASAP

But you have my permission to put the trem and vibe into your take on a Leslie pedal I suppose. Then we don't need to debate the terms.

Edit: I don't even need the vibe portion, who am I kidding. This is a cute little trem, but a bit pricy at $150 I reckon: http://proguitarshop.com/flickinger-vic ... icket.html

I love my LGP.
Apologies to Laurie for delays in shipping trade pedal, the summer has been a mind blowing madhouse with bizarre coincidences and almost meeting Disco Stu, freaky stuff..
