New Tele Day

by The_Doc » 06 Nov 2013, 17:11

Big apologies to everyone - I know I've been AWOL from the forum for a while

I noticed a couple of threads about Teles which reminded me that I really should have shared a few pix of my new addition with you.

It's a 2013 FSR American Vintage 72 Custom in Sonic Natural and was bought for those special 'Keef' moments Hopefully, I will never have to use it to control stage invasions

It's built to the 1972 spec with treble roll-off on the neck hb. Fender include a full wiring schematic and a capacitor should you want to change it to a modern spec with more bite. They also include a more modern bridge plate and saddles should you want to repace that too. Mine will be staying as is.

Nice to see you around again! No need to apologise! Does your daughter still do the felting stuff?

Cool Tele! Looks very much like the Fender "Black Dove" that I'd love to own one day (this one has P90 pickups).

Yes, she does a few commissions these days but mainly of animals and pets. I bought her the wool ages ago for her to felt a PH-1 for me and I'm still waiting - you just can't rush artists !! I'll hi-jack my own thread for a moment, just for old times sake !! The yellow beast lives among the OD-1s

Always a delight to look at! Really fine job! Show us pics of the complete traffic-light-set when it's ready some day!

Very cool! I was admiring a tele with the same control setup earlier today:

The layout of the knobs and pickup switch makes for a really serious looking tele in my opinion, I quite like yours.

The grain on the body looks great. Nice guitar!

Thanks all.

The grain - going to the point at the bottom of the guitar did help close the deal I was also very keen to get a rosewood neck to complement the maple neck standard Tele that I use for gigs. They feel very different to play.

a moment, just for old times sake !! The yellow beast lives among the OD-1s 😁

Would this comply to the pedal exchange rules ? 💡

For those interested - work has commenced on a furry version of a PH-1 !

I'll start a separate thread for these when it arrives - could be a while though - you can't hurry an artist - even if she is your eldest daughter ! 😊

The furry OD-1 is really cool! Detail is really nice on both the dog and pedal
